Farmhouses

Flax growing, among other things, created a wealthier class of farmers in the region. It was these farmers who began to build the impressive Decorated Farmhouses of Hälsingland. There was competition among the villages to have the most splendid and highly adorned farmstead buildings. The interiors featured beautiful folk art and intricate woodwork and carvings created by skilled local artists and craftsmen. Today, many of these Farmhouses of Hälsingland are well preserved and open to the public. Contained within them is the history of Hälsingland from the 18th century onwards. www.halsingegardar.se

STORA HÄLSINGEGÅRDARS VÄG

The Hälsingland Farm Trail is a tourist trail that meanders through and passes the villages and districts that are home to the biggest Hälsingland Farmhouses, the most magnificent porches, and most extravagantly painted interiors. The trail, which takes you through a cultural landscape that is a thousand years old, stretches from the banks of the Voxna River to the vast forests of the north, home to the farms' summer pastures.

The flax scutcheries, mills, and sawmills of the watercourses that flow from the wooded high country down through villages to the river bear witness to the agriculture that made the Hälsingland farmers rich. The route, which is 28 km long and runs between Alfta and Edsbyn, links the three open farms Ol-Anders, Löka, and Märtes. www.storahalsingegardarsvag.se

World Heritage

The decision to add the Decorated Farmhouses of Hälsingland to the World Heritage List was taken in the summer of 2012.

The easiest way to get information about the farmhouses is at one of our four Visitor Centers. There are Visitor Centers at Erik-Anders in Söderhamn, Ol-Anders in Alfta, Träslottet in Arbrå and Stenegård in Järvsö. All the Visitor Centers have exhibitions and sell souvenirs.

Churches

There are a number of churches and chapels worth visiting in the area, particularly in Edsbyn, which is renowned for its diversity of Christian denominations. The first minister of Ovanåker's church was Nicolaus Magni, grandfather of the famous Anders Celsius, the inventor of the inventor of the Celsius temperature scale. A monument in his honor

See and Experience

The wilderness here is neither desolate nor monotonous. Over 350 lakes and 450 km of flowing streams and rivers yield wonderful outdoor opportunities. A canoe excursion is an excellent way to experience the untamed nature of this beautiful region. Swimming is permitted almost everywhere.

Nature – Hiking

Hälsingland has a magnificent and varied landscape with impressive forests, high mountains, and many lakes and watercourses. It offers great opportunities for outdoor relaxation and recreation. Trekking along the region's trails is a popular activity. Trail guides with information on overnighting and rest stops are available for purchase at the Tourist Bureau.

Fishing

There are many fine places to fish where you can find, among others, salmon, trout, char, grayling, pike-perch, perch, pike, and bream. Rainbow trout is stocked in some of the "put-and-take" ponds in the mountains and forest areas.

Winter

Gårdtjärnsberget is an alpine family resort with four ski runs of varying degrees of difficulty and two ski lifts, not to mention several groomed cross-country ski trails and plenty of great winter fishing.

Alfta and Edsbyn also feature two public facilities with indoor pools. Edsbyn is also famous for its bandy team, which has produced several of the sport's superstars and has won the Swedish championship several times.

Canoeing
